The Yellow Dog Project

[Laura Simpson, care2.com, http://tinyurl.com/b5ehgd October 9, 2012] Anyone who has ever had an infirmed, unsocial or elderly dog is going to love The Yellow Dog Project, a global movement for parents of dogs that need space. The concept behind it is quite simple. If you see a dog with a yellow ribbon or other items tied to its leash, that signifies a dog who needs space and you should not attempt to pet the dog or bring your own dog over for a greeting. Now here's an idea that's long overdue.

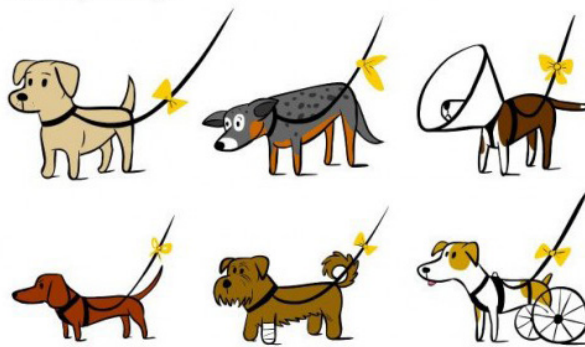

The Yellow Dog Project has now made its mark in 45 countries and educational materials have been translated into 12 languages. Fans are calling it, "Brilliant" and "The best thing to happen since the invention of the leash!"

Recently, I was walking my two dogs on some trails behind the local elementary school. I go there because of the open fields and because few people come through the area in the evening. My dogs need space. I have an elderly Labrador with laryngeal paralysis (a condition which inhibits a dog's ability to breath when he is warm or excited). It's very important to keep him calm, and with my mid-sized terrier mix boinging alongside him, I already have my hands full in keeping the walks safe for both of them. But then along comes a man with absolutely no boundaries. As he made a bee-line for us I hollered out, "Please don't bring your dog over." His response was, "Don't worry he's friendly." And with that he let go of his dog's leash and says, "Go get em!"

THE YELLOW DOG PROJECT.com

If you see a dog with a YELLOW RIBBON or something yellow on the leash, this is a dog who needs some space. Please do not approach this dog with your dog. Please maintain distance or give this dog and his/her person time to move out of your way.

There are many reasons why a dog may need space:
HEALTH ISSUES
IN TRAINING
BEING REHABILITATED
SCARED OR REACTIVE AROUND OTHER DOGS

THANK YOU!

Those of us who own these dogs appreciate your help and respect!

Upcoming Meeting

The next meeting of the DKC membership will take place on Monday, May 20, 2013. Please join us at 7:00p for a potluck dinner, and furry friends are welcome at 7:30p.

There is no program, as the new slate of officers will be elected. See more information on p. 6.

The Yellow Dog Project (cont from p. 1)

Now here I am holding the hand of a small child and balancing two leashes in my hand, trying not to let the dogs tangle or to allow my elderly dog to get any sort of additional stimulation, and this dog comes at us like a bowling ball. As expected, it was a mess. My two dogs got tangled around one another. My older dog felt threatened and the oncomer snapped at him. My daughter was frightened and this guy just casually saunters over with no regard for the fall out. I had to ask him two more times to please move away with his dog before he finally understood. By that time, my elderly dog was gasping for air and I had to kneel on the ground with him for a full 15 minutes before he could recover.

These days we have a yellow bandana tied around both leashes and look forward to the day when this concept is widely embraced by the pet loving community. You can visit <http://www.theyellowdogproject.com>.

This news has been brought to you by The Great Animal Rescue Chase tournament of heroes.

July Obedience and Rally Trials

Obedience and Rally Trials are July 13-14, 2013, at NetSports in Morrisville. Judges are Karen Anderson, Chris Cornell, and Linda Scanlon! All the optional and non-regular obedience classes will be offered, including Brace and Team. There will again be a match Friday evening, July 12. The premium is available on the DKC website.

-- Jan Gray

Hey Guys!! The club really needs your support for the trophies for our July Obedience trials. Please check out the classes being offered on the sign up sheet on p. 7!!! As you can see, we are offering every imaginable class that AKC has available right now!! Let me know what you want to sponsor: by e-mail, phone or snail mail. We will be offering nice rosettes and very useful, functional, fun items as prizes! Please help keep DKC's reputation alive as having great Obedience trials with super prizes!! Huge thanks to those who have already offered to sponsor a class or classes & those who have paid already!! I know some of you offered...but you know I have a hard time deciding which class to pick for you!!....Please take another look & let me know what class you want!! I know that I have problems with the DKC e-mail facility...so I will get some help by having others send this also...Sorry if you get this more than once!! Again....Thank you for your support!! Payments can be mailed to: Denise McDonald, PO Box 50, Rougemont, NC 27572 (919-886-9842).

Yard Sale

MARK YOUR CALENDARS! Our annual yard sale is planned for July 20, with RECEIVING, SET UP & PRICING on 7/18 and 7/19. If you are doing any Spring Cleaning, please save your donations to the yard sale for us. As a reminder, we take almost anything other than clothing and live furry creatures. Electrical items should be in safe working order. Yard/garden items, kitchen items, sheets/linens, camping equipment, games for all ages, books, puzzles, animal training items, crates, hats, belts, scarves, jewelry, furniture....you name it and we will take it. However, we do ask that the items come into the building minus spiders/bugs and such. We price the items, so all you have to do is get them to us. Watch for more info closer to the date. If you would like to help with set up, please let me know. It is a service, and we have fun. Thanks!

Minutes from Members' Meeting, April 15, 2013

There was no program as the meeting was followed by a fundraiser for the Veterinary School Research Endowment.

The Meeting was called to order at 7:45 pm.

The Minutes of the March meeting were approved.

There were no reports from the Recording or Corresponding Secretaries.

Treasurer's Report: the Treasurer reported the current account balances.

The Recording Secretary read the proposed slate of new officers:

President: Dee Wallis
Vice President: Anne Fitzgibbon
Treasurer: Linda Wozniak
Board Members: George Abell and Roger Akers

There were no nominations from the floor.

Membership: Three new full members were unanimously voted in: Dale & Robert Wisniewski, and Jane White. Previous candidate member, Caroline Niblock, was reinstated as candidate member.

The meeting was adjourned at 8:50 pm.

-- Respectfully submitted, Gillian Goodacre

The DKC Spring Agility Trial has finished up and now comes the time when it falls on Anne and me to thank everyone for their help – almost an impossible task. If we've omitted you, we apologize because we have really appreciated each effort that was made.

Thanks to:

- Ann Carter and Roger Akers for too many things to list – they were always there with a helping hand, positive attitude, and a strong back;
- Mary Whorton for taking charge of the timers and new displaceable tire and making certain they were all operating perfectly – also to Mary for giving up her time for a “timer and tire tutorial;”
- Jan Gray for giving up her time for a FAST equipment tutorial and volunteering all day on Saturday;
- Marcia Stedman for the best workers' raffle ever, getting the cakes for Saturday, and assistance in getting grass-mowing estimates;
- Maria Walker for getting Roxboro hotel information, and along with Lew, managing garbage and recycling, and providing hard labor and a great attitude;
- Sallie Redding for her great course building and lots of volunteering;
- Karen Stewart for getting new and exciting vendors and giving us lots of great ideas;
- George and Emilie Beglane for trailer loading and unloading, tent set-up, sawdust retrieval, pizza purchase, and always being there to see that things got done;
- Denise McDonald for great worker coordination – Karl Blakely was super impressed with our workers;
- Pat Wallace for providing the best workers snacks ever, transportation and drinks for the judge, and a wonderful positive attitude;
- Gillian Goodacre for judge transportation and lots of great suggestions;
- Cathy and Scott Wells for cleaning the barn, providing wonderful lunches, and for assistance in getting grass mowing estimates;
- Laura Boyce and Emmett Wiggins for trailer loading and unloading, working in the classes, and an emergency run to Whole Foods;
- Sharon Pitz for helping us understand what was needed from the building, checking the Port-johns, trailer loading and unloading, and lots of other small things too numerous to list;
- Tracy Fletcher for providing us with information on how to repair the dogwalk and the best Agility Trial Chair checklist – without it we would have been lost;
- Lois Schultz for working tirelessly in the classes and helping with trailer loading and unloading;
- Betsy King for organizing the Team competition and getting the team prizes;

- Peggy Schmidt for compiling the statistics for the Team competition, giving out their awards, and lots of volunteering;
- DKC members too numerous to name who volunteered to work in the classes;
- Thomas Givens for getting more spare batteries, lots of help, and not laughing at our stupid mistakes;
- And last, but not least, to the DKC Board for having faith in us.

Hey Guys! Thank you so much for all the work that all of you did for the three days of Agility trials this past weekend at the Harris Road property!! All of you out did yourselves as usual!! It really is unusual for a Club that is active in so many venues ...to have everyone pull together and put on such a huge event.... and we have been doing this at this site for 20 years!!! THANK YOU ALL ...A Big Pat on the Back to all of you!! Special thanks to those who came out 1, 2 or all 3 days... and to those who came out & were not even showing or participate in the sport!! Woo Yoo to Lois Schultz who worked just about all day on Saturday and didn't even get in the trial that day! As she says..."It is the second best seat in the house when you volunteer...The Judge has the best seat!!" We need this attitude passed on as these days ...way too many in the sport do not feel that they need to help...Trials just happen for their convenience! It is great to know that none of our club members have this attitude and don't pass this attitude on to anyone!!

And huge congratulations to Anne & Anne for co-chairing this event and getting an initiation by fire..errr and/or tornado!! Ya'll did great!! Thank you, Thank you, Thank you!!!

-- Denise McDonald

I'd like to add our appreciation to everyone for carrying off yet another great trial. In particular, Scott and I want to give a big THANKS to Roger Akers and Lew Walker for digging the trench in front of the barn so the rain had somewhere to go other than inside! Also, Beth Dixon is the on-site manager and she was very instrumental in getting the barn cleaned out so we could use it. We went out there with tools for cleaning and digging, only to find that the hard work had already been done. We will miss that place!

[Dr. Andy Roark, vetstreet.com, April 22, 2013] Just last week, while I was performing euthanasia for a critically ill patient, the pet's owner looked at me and said, "I bet this is the hardest part of your job." That gave me pause.

For me, putting animals to sleep is not one of the hardest parts of being a veterinarian. That's because euthanasia is often a blessing and gift to a suffering animal. In my experience, the hardest part of being a veterinarian is telling owners that their beloved pet has a terminal illness and will soon be leaving this world. The emotions that pass across their faces, even if they have suspected the worst for some time, are heart-wrenching.

I still remember the first person I had to share this terrible news with. He was a nice, middle-aged man with two small children and an 8-year-old Rottweiler named Stone. Stone was a member of the family, and when he started to limp, his owner brought him straight in to be checked out. Stone was a wonderful dog at home, but he was not a fan of the veterinary clinic. My best dog treats did nothing to warm his heart, and when I manipulated his painful left shoulder, well... that ended our chances of being best friends.

Even though Stone was not an admirer of mine, I liked him, and I really liked his owner. That made it so much harder to discuss his diagnosis: osteosarcoma. Osteosarcoma is a painful bone tumor that responds poorly to treatment. In some cases, treatments involving limb amputation and/or radiation therapy can be beneficial. In Stone's case, these options were not feasible.

Together, Stone's owner and I decided to provide him with the best palliative care we could, and we promised each other that we would not let Stone suffer. When the time came, we would do the right - if tough - thing and put him to sleep rather than allow him to live in increasing pain.

Stone's owner was the first person I ever had an end-of-life discussion with, and he was also the first person to ask me a question I have heard hundreds of times since: "How will I know when it's time?"

The most recent person to ask me this question was my own mother. Her Miniature Schnauzer has battled long-term health problems and was recently diagnosed with diabetes. Unfortunately, she initially responded poorly to treatment. She lost her love of food, began soiling her bed and was generally acting pitiful.

How to Decide

Over the past few years, I've heard a lot of veterinarians give wonderful advice to people who are wondering when it is time to give their pets the gift of a peaceful passing. Here are four of the best pieces of advice I've heard, and they are the same ones I passed on to my own mother for her consideration.

Every pet, illness and situation is different. There is no single rule that can be followed for when it is time to help your best friend "cross the rainbow bridge." Getting input from your veterinarian on the specific medical conditions that your loved one may face is vital for doing what is best for your pet. You may also benefit from having a caring friend who is not as emotionally involved in the situation as you are to help you gain perspective and really "see" what is happening with your pet.

Remember that pets live in the moment. One of the most wonderful things about animals is how they embrace the present. Every time I walk into my house, my faithful Vizsla throws a one-dog ticker tape parade. The fact that I have entered the house thousands of times before, or that I will leave again in a few hours, means nothing. All that matters to him is the joy that he feels right now.

When our pets are suffering, they don't reflect on all the great days they have had before, or ponder what the future will bring. All they know is how they feel today. By considering this perspective, we can see the world more clearly through their eyes. And their eyes are what matter.

Ask yourself important questions. Sometimes, articulating or writing down your thoughts can make the right path more apparent. Some questions that help pet owners struggling with this decision include:

- Why do I think it might be time to euthanize?
- What are my fears and concerns about euthanizing?
- Whose interests, besides those of my pet, am I taking into account?
- What are the concerns of the people around me?
- Am I making this decision because it is best for my pet, or because it is best for me because I'm not ready to let go?

Measure their quality of life. This is no more than trying to determine how good or bad our pet's life is at this moment. Trying to assess this can be difficult, but there are some ways you can try and evaluate it. Let's take a look at a few of my favorites in the next section.

Is Life a Joy or a Drag?

Our pets may not be able to talk to us and tell us how they are doing, but if we pay close attention, there are many clues that can help us answer that question.

The Rule of "Five Good Things:" Pick the top five things that your pet loves to do. Write them down. When he or she can no longer do three or more of them, quality of life has been impacted to a level where many veterinarians would recommend euthanasia.

Good Days vs. Bad: When pets have “good days and bad days,” it can be difficult to see how their condition is progressing over time. Actually tracking the days when your pet is feeling good as well as the days when he or she is not feeling well can be helpful. A check mark for good days and an X for bad days on your calendar can help you determine when a loved one is having more bad days than good.

HHHHMM: Doctor Alice Villalobos is a well-known veterinary oncologist. Her “HHHHMM” Quality of Life Scale is another useful tool. The five Hs and two Ms are: Hurt, Hunger, Hydration, Happiness, Hygiene (the ability to keep the pet clean from bodily waste), Mobility and More (as in, more good days than bad). Dr. Villalobos recommends grading each category on a scale of 1-10 (with 1 being poorest quality of life and 10 being best). If the majority of categories are ranked as 5 or above, continuing with supportive care is acceptable.

Pet Hospice Journal: Keeping a journal of your pet’s condition, behavior, appetite, etc., can be extremely valuable in evaluating quality of life over time.

A Tale of Two “Endings”

Thankfully, my mother’s Schnauzer, Zoe, eventually responded to her therapy. As a perpetual optimist, I like to think that she may be with us for some time to come. Still, the reality of having older pets is that we must be vigilant in their care and aware that every day is a gift.

In the case of my long-ago patient, Stone, with whom I first walked this path, I am glad to say that he did not suffer unnecessarily with osteosarcoma. His owner made a good decision, and Stone crossed the rainbow bridge while in the loving arms of his people. He was remembered by them as a strong, loving protector of the children in his family, and I will always remember his owner for having the strength and wisdom I hope we’ll all have when the time comes to say that final goodbye.

Graduates from the Spring 2013 Pet Therapy class.

Recently, a bill entitled “H956 - Regulate Ownership of Aggressive Dog Breeds” was introduced in the NC House of Representatives. The bill, sponsored by Rep. Rodney Moore, was supposedly introduced at the request of one of his Mecklenburg County-based constituents. The bill specifically classes all Pit Bulls, Staffordshire Bull Terriers, Am Staffs, Rottweilers, Mastiffs, Chows, Presa Canario, and wolf hybrids as aggressive dogs. Furthermore, it requires a prospective owner of such breeds to do the following prior to ownership:

- Submit to a criminal background check by the county sheriff.
- Take a four hour course designed to educate about the temperament of these dogs and the requirements for their responsible ownership.
- Notify the issuer of their homeowners or renters insurance of compliance with this new law.
- Apply for a special permit to possess an aggressive dog breed.

Conviction for violation of these provisions would be a Class 3 misdemeanor.

The implications here are enough to scare any dog owner. What about other breeds not listed, would they be added in the near future? Something like Dobermans, German Shepherd Dogs, American Cocker Spaniels? This list has the potential to include many more breeds. And what about that notification to your home insurer? North Carolina does not regulate the home insurance market like it does other forms of insurance. Issuers notified of your possession of a dog in a state that considers it an aggressive breed would be able to cancel your home insurance immediately, and without fear of reprisal or any consequence for their actions. Forget about trying to find a new insurer, it would be time to sell the house and move to another state!

Sometimes legislation makes me think - what were they thinking? Well, this story will have a happy ending for many of DKC’s dog owners as Rep. Rodney Moore’s bill is going nowhere in a hurry. Shortly after the bill’s introduction, the lobbyist for the NC Federation of Dog Clubs paid visits to several NC House of Representatives leaders and had them agree to assign the bill to a committee where it will never be heard and will die under provisions of the House Rules on May 16, 2013. Chalk one up this time for dog owners’ rights. Who knows what may be next.
